Texchange Release 1.0 Public Reviews

1) How intuitive is the website?

I required help for most of the website	I required help for more than 50% of the website	I required help for 50% of the website	I required little help when using the website	I required no help to use the website
0	1	1	6	7

2) How aesthetically pleasing is the website?

One star	Two stars	Three stars	Four stars	Five stars
0	1	4	7	3

3) How would you rate the features?

Features are mostly irrelevant	Features are somewhat irrelevant	Features are satisfactory	Features are good	Features are excellent
0	0	1	2	12

4) How many bugs did you encounter?

4	3	2	1	0
0	0	1	8	6

5) Any final comments or future development suggestions for Texchange?

Tristan: "I feel as though this website has potential to be something fantastic! I suppose add more features that seem relevant, such as a method to prevent people from 'stealing' books and find a way to monetise it to help support it."

Rob: "I believe Texchange is already a decent product but further development is required for me to consider using it seriously. There needs to be more features to facilitate the sharing of textbooks, and perhaps a shop that sells textbooks at a discount."

Brandon: "This is such a fantastic idea and I know that people will definitely use it if you keep working on it! I would absolutely use it for sure!"

Caitlin: "It's okay, but I really don't know how successful it will be. There are bugs to be fixed and with the pressure of university on the developers it will surely be placed as a lower priority item. Not to be a nay-sayer, but I wouldn't believe this is going to be 100% successful."

Julie: "I did feel somewhat lost once, but aside from that it was very easy to use and I felt like I knew my way around it well. Keep designing in such a fashion and you won't need a tutorial at all!"

John: "If you could possibly extend the feature to include novels and other works of fiction, this might become something revolutionary. As-is, it is a competent website with room for expansion, so I shall await future development!"

Dylan: "I like Texchange, but if you were to add some social aspect to the website to discuss books, that would be rather useful. Even if you created a Facebook page where people can ask and answer questions easily, that would work too. I feel like students could discuss which books are good for which subjects and disciplines. That's just my two cents though, but otherwise it is good!"

Lao: "Aside from the bugs, I think you guys should work on more features to add. I'm really not sure what kind of features, but it does seem somewhat incomplete. Good work though!"

Chris: "If someone had've created this during my earlier years at university, I would have saved so much money. For everyone else, this is fantastic! Keep it up!"

Kylie: "This is genuinely great. I definitely will use it when it is fully completed!"

Nick: "There's one major problem with this website; it's not completed. It really does feel like it needs more, but otherwise it's good! Looks quite modern and elegant too. I'm very impressed by how the email system works."

Jeff: "I can't believe there isn't something like this already. It seems so obvious! Keep at it, and maybe add in custom profile pictures for users."

Travis: "I would rate it 4/5 all up, for a beta build. There were a couple of bugs I found while exploring, but those are easily fixed, and it's quite elegant by design."

Daniel: "Pretty good. There's not much to say really since it's still early in development, but pretty good so far!"

Anonymous: "I do fancy this website so far. Quite intuitive and enjoyable!"